Cone Employee First In City To Get R. C. Award

Donald Thornton, sales trainee with Cone Mills, who has for the past several months been working in Cone Mills Laboratory, this week received a high honor, the first of its kind to be awarded in Greensboro. The award is the Certificate of Merit of the American Red Cross, given only for performing a lifesaving act that is adjudged meritorious in saving or attempting to save the life of a fellow being. Mr. Thornton rescued Marine Cpl. Kenneth Johnson and Mrs. Johnson at Wrightsville Beach last July. Mrs. Johnson died from cuts and bruises. (See Textorian, August 12, 1955)

The certificate was presented by Garland Murray, director of Safety Services of the Greensboro Chapter of the American Red Cross. It is signed by President Eisenhower, honorary chairman of the American Red Cross and E. Roland Harriman, National Red Cross president.

Anyone recommended for this award must have completed Red Cross First Aid or Senior Life Saving prior to the performance of the act. Evidence must be presented that proves that the best possible techniques were used under existing circumstances and that the victim would have perished except for service performed; or if not saved, that nothing was left undone.

In presenting the award, Mr. Murray stated, "The Red Cross is an organization of people helping people. The purpose of our Red Cross Water Safety Program, which is 41 years old, is to prevent needless loss of life from drowning, through training courses in swimming, life saving and small craft.

"Your recent experience at Wrightsville Beach was an occasion when you found it necessary to perform life saving skills which you had learned from your Red Cross Senior Life Saving course plus your previous training experiences with beach rescue techniques.

"You are to be commended for the service you rendered in rescuing Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. Even though the life saving attempt for Mrs. Johnson was unsuccessful, we are confident that nothing was left undone in your efforts to do your best against the high waves and

Will Downum Retires After 48 Yrs. Service

W. C. "Will" Downum, fixer in the Spooler Department, Salisbury Plant, celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary by retiring last week after 48 years of service with the Cone Mills Corporation. Mr. Downum came to work in 1907 in the Spooling Department and has been on the same job ever since. He has seen many changes in the mill during his stay there.

Mr. Downum is a member of Coburn Memorial Methodist Church. His hobby is fishing. He lived for a number of years on Hill Street in Salisbury and has just recently moved into his new home on Glenwood Avenue there.

He was married to Miss Bertha Leach on March 7, 1912, and they have three children, Mrs. Ruby Simpson, Mrs. Louise Simpson of Salisbury and William Downum of Cooleemee.

At the close of Mr. Downum's last work day, W. S. Hartsell, Spinning Department overseer, presented him with a beautiful chair and a cake, on behalf of the Spooler Room employees. Refreshments were enjoyed by all employees working the first shift in the Spooling Department.

Three Changes Made In Personnel Dept.

Three changes in the Personnel Department were announced this week.

S. L. Adams, who has been personnel assistant at Edna Plant, Reidsville since 1951, has been assigned a new responsibility in the Personnel Department. His assignment will be primarily concerned with the development of a salary administration program. A native of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. Adams holds a bachelor of arts degree in business administration with a major in industrial relations. He is a member of the Reidsville Kiwanis Club and has been active in work of the Boy Scouts and the Red Cross. He and Mrs. Adams plan to move to Greensboro.

Replacing Mr. Adams at Edna Plant will be James L. Baker, who worked at Revolution for two years before he served with the Marine Corps. Mr. Baker has just completed four years service with the Marines as staff sergeant in the First and Second Marine Air Wings. He has had 14 months service in Japan and Korea. He graduated from Greensboro Senior High School, in 1949. He and Mrs. Baker have one son, 18 months old, and they live at 2713 Spring Garden Street.

Leo Redmond, who has been at Print Works for the past 15 years, is now personnel assistant for that plant. He attended Proximity High School and started to work as driver of the Print Works pick up truck in 1940. Four years later he began work in the office of the plant. He and Mrs. Redmond have one child, age seven, and they live on Westridge Road.

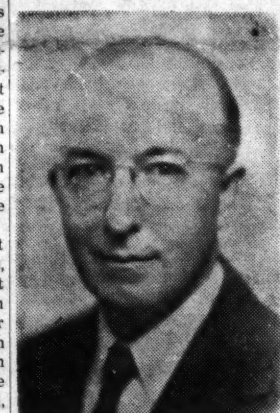

BIGGEST YET—Archie Kearns, left, of the Cutting Room Shop at Granite Plant, Haw River, smiles proudly as he accepts the check for $250 which he won for a useful suggestion he made through the Cone Mills Suggestion system. Sydney M. Cone, Jr., vice president, made the presentation. All Cone plant employees are invited to submit suggestions. Amount of the award depends upon the idea's value to company operations.

Revolution Club To Meet

Revolution Community Club will meet at 10 a.m. on October 5 in the clubroom over the Employment Office. All women are invited to attend.

PTA Board To Meet

Simmons, interstate secretary of the Interstate Committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the Carolinas. All of the campaign's volunteer workers will be guests at the dinner. Wayne Cates will be toastmaster.

Mr. Simmons replaces the late J. Wilson Smith, who served the YMCA for 32 years. A native of Abbeville, S. C., Mr. Simmons had served as executive secretary of the Brooklyn N. Y. Central YMCA since 1944. The Brooklyn association is the largest single YMCA in the world.

Tomorrow night's speaker is a graduate of Wofford College and CHAMPIONSHIP TROPHY—Edwin Holt, assistant vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, is shown presenting the championship trophy to Alvester Wheeler, manager of Proximity Office softball team. Ob- serving is Jack Justice, general secretary of Champion YMCA in Canton. Mr. Justice was featured speaker at the softball banquet sponsored by both Cone Y's Men's Clubs, and the YMCA Athletic Department.

Granite Employee Wins Largest Award For Idea

Archie Franklin Kearns of the Cutting Room at Granite Plant, Haw River, has been awarded $250.00 by Cone Mills Corporation for a very useful suggestion he made concerning Cutting Room operations. This is the second time Mr. Kearns has come up with a prize-winning idea in the Cone Mills suggestion system which is open to all plant employees. (Mr. Kearns made his suggestions before he became a supervisor.) To date this award is the largest won by a Cone Mills employee since the five-year-old suggestion program has been in operation.

Magazine Features Laboratory Bldg.

The Cone Mills Laboratory building which houses the Laboratory, the Textorian Office, Cone Mills Inc. Printing Shop and Sample Department, is featured in the September issue of Architectural Record, national magazine.

The magazine devoted two pages to the building with two pictures and a floor plan of the first floor included.

The two-story building at the corner of Fourth and Maple Streets contains 25,200 square feet of floor space and was designed to be as flexible as possible, allowing for future space requirements. Movable partitions and portable heating and cooling units are used to further the flexibility of the building.

Billionaires!

Chemistry teachers used to astound their students by saying that the chemical content of a human body was worth just about 98 cents—a rather humiliating thought. But today, in the atomic age, we're informed that the atoms in the body of an average person contain a potential energy of more than 11 million kilowatt hours per pound, making the most of us worth something like $85.5 billion apiece!

PINEVILLE SUGGESTION—Shown above, is Mrs. Mamie W. Bowden, an employee of the Pineville Weaving Department, who recently suggested that when changing from Sateen to Twill to use the same harness and reed. This will save drawing in on each new pattern. Mrs. Bowden received a cash award from Cone Mills Corporation for submitting this suggestion.

Demands Broad Sober Consideration

The entire world has been seriously concerned over the shocking news that President Eisenhower has suffered a heart attack. It is indeed encouraging to learn that his condition is rapidly improving and that recovery is anticipated.

Although The Textorian is very seriously concerned over the administration's present policy and attitude toward the foreign trade situation as it affects textiles, in all fairness we cannot conscientiously place the entire blame upon the present administration, as certain administrative action relative to negotiations with foreign countries on tariff agreements took place and set precedents before the present administration came into power. In that respect we definitely feel that the much needed remedy for the situation will have to come from Congress. We believe that to be true regardless of which party is in control.

In appraising President Eisenhower's administration we must recognize that mistakes have been made, but we believe an impartial appraisal would definitely establish the fact that as a whole it has served the country well both as to national and international affairs. Although the President has not achieved all that he promised or sought, his batting average has been very high. It may be that he is not deserving of all the credit for the cessation of hostilities and the progress which has been made in better international understanding, but we should admit that he has dynamically spearheaded a drive to ease the tension and fears which have existed throughout the world for many years.

It may also be true that he has made some unfortunate selections in personnel, but again we believe it must be admitted that as a whole he has very strong, honest men and women carrying out key jobs in his administration.

Despite partisan political sniping at the President, fairminded citizens have admired his courage, his forthrightness, his honesty and integrity. Furthermore, we feel that the President's motives and actions have been dominated by what he thought would be to the best interest of the country and other peoples of the world irrespective of partisan politics.

Certainly it was to be expected that many of the orthodox leaders in the opposing party and the many others who give wholehearted allegiance to the opposing party irrespective of true facts would try to turn a magnifying glass upon the present administrative actions and policies to try to find flaws which they might use for political purposes.

Although we are a strong believer in the two-party system and find no fault in the fact that both parties try to gain all the advantages they can at the expense of the other party, we do feel that too frequently such political motives prevent brilliant and capable citizens from becoming true statesmen.

Millions of people have publicly expressed serious concern over the health of the President and the prayers of the nation have been dedicated to his physical welfare. That is indeed encouraging, but we sincerely hope that the unfortunate turn of events will not unleash the hungry political wolves who will attempt to use the unfortunate circumstances for narrow, partisan political purposes.

President Eisenhower has in our opinion set a brilliant example of nonpartisanship insofar as major problems and objectives are concerned. We doubt very seriously whether many Presidents in the history of the nation have a better record in that respect. The people of this country should recognize him as an honest and conscientious statesman and not look upon him as a member of a political party.

It now appears that the President will recover from his heart attack and probably regain his health completely, but we seriously doubt whether he will or should seek re-election. If that should be the case, both parties should make every effort to nominate men of strong character—big men who are willing to become real statesmen and not merely representatives of their particular party. The situation demands broad, sober patriotic consideration.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

... by Dr. George S. Benson
 DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
 Searcy, Arkansas

One of the things that seldom happens in government has happened. The head of a Federal government agency, without being subjected to any pressure, has asked Congress to give his department less money than it has been getting. And even more unusual, the savings has been made possible by the application of common-sense thrift and hard-headed business practices in government.

The full story is enough to make taxpayers all over America toss their hats in the air and give three cheers for the man responsible. He is William H. Brett, Director of the Bureau of the Mint. Congress accepted his self-imposed budget reduction of about 17 per cent, but since the Mint's operation is so relatively small as compared to other government operations, Mr. Brett's outstanding example of public service has gone almost unnoticed.

Mr. Brett became Director of the Mint just a year ago. He is an Alliance, Ohio, manufacturer. He accepted the appointment at considerable sacrifice. After he looked over the Mint operation carefully, he reported to Treasury Secretary George Humphrey that certain operational changes ought to be made for efficiency and economy. Mr. Humphrey told him to make them. He did.

Since the Mint's budget is comparatively small $3,650,000, the money savings to taxpayers will amount to only about $800,000. The important thing about Director Brett's accomplishment is the pattern of efficiency and economy established. If it were applied throughout the government it would permit the balancing of the Federal budget and tax cuts as well.

Mr. Brett did several basic things that might well be established as operational musts in every government bureau and agency. Upon taking the job he made a realistic study of the operation. With the aid of experienced members of the staff, he worked out an efficient program of operation. He went directly to the people he served—the banks—and asked for cooperation in improving efficiency and cutting expense. He abolished more than 100 jobs. And he helped find jobs in private industry for the people whose jobs were eliminated.

If enough taxpayers wrote to Mr. Humphrey, suggesting it, perhaps Mr. Brett's accomplishment could be publicly commended in a high-level White House ceremony. It might do some good.

BETWEEN WARS STEADY OR FALLING PRICES USUALLY PREVAIL

Some people believe that prices continually rise but history proves that this is not the case. An examination of the record by the National Association of Manufacturers discloses that price rises occur during and immediately following wars. Between wars there is no tendency for prices to rise continuously. In the past century prices have increased fourfold. Since 1820 price rises occurred during 4 brief periods, all overlapping our major wars.

Since 1952 there has been substantial stability of prices and the record demonstrates that there is no historical tendency for prices to rise continuously. The NAM points out that "if we can avoid the fiscal and monetary mistakes which were made during our past wars—and if we can avoid making any new policy mistakes—there is no need to accept future inflation as inevitable."

George Williams

(An apprentice in a draper's shop in London, called together eleven of his fellow youthful employees to meet with him in his bedroom over the store. They organized the world's first Young Men's Christian Association. Later he became proprietor of the store, and was knighted by Queen Victoria. This poem is by John F. Moore and is in the book, "The Y in Rhyme.")

You little knew, George Williams,
When working as a boy
In time you would be master
And many a youth employ.
You only knew the beauty
Words can never portray
That lies in loyal service,
Faithfulness day by day.

You never knew, George Williams,
Of a day that was to be,

When your name would be emblazoned
On the page of chivalry,
When a queenly hand would touch you
And a queenly voice would say,
"Arise, my Sir George William,
I dub you a knight today."

You never knew, George Williams,
That you one day would stand
Hailed as a benefactor
By youth of many a land
Who in teeming thousands
Had sought God's better way
Because of your devotion
And your Y.M.C.A.

We learn from you, George Williams,
They labor not in vain
Who love and serve their brothers
Through rapture and through pain.
Though fame may never own them
Nor man accord acclaim,
Theirs is a glory fadeless,
In Heaven inscribed their name.

Had you been but a dreamer,

IMPORTANT EDUCATION—The North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, shown above, is one of the most important educational factors in the state. This orchestra has offered more free concerts to children than any in the entire country. Instruction in various phases of orchestral music and instruments is also offered free to the children of the state. Last season, approximately 190,000 North Carolinians heard great music performed by their own state symphony under the direction of Dr. Benjamin Swalin. Membership drive is now on.

The Bible Speaks To Your Need

By Rev. W. L. Bennett, Pastor
Sixteenth St. Baptist Church

You have no doubt heard the remark, "I'm my own man. I will do as I please and it is nobody else's business." But is this statement true? It is certainly not true of a Christian. A Christian is not his own to do as he pleases, and what he does is most positively somebody else's business. In 1 Cor. 6:19-20, Paul reminds certain Christians of this very truth. "Ye are not your own. For ye are bought with a price; therefore, glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." In this text, we see some great teaching concerning God's Ownership and man's Stewardship. The Christian is not his own, because he did not make himself. But in a greater degree still, the Christian is not his own because he is bought with a price, even the precious blood of Jesus (1 Pet. 1:19). Christians are God's property. Jesus is their Lord and Master, and He has the perfect right to order their lives according to His divine will and purpose.

In the parable of the talents, Jesus illustrates our responsibility to God in the use of our talents (Mt. 25:14-30). To one man Jesus pictured God as giving five talents; to another, two and to another, one. The first two put the money into use and doubled what they received. But the third man was afraid to do anything with his, so he buried it in the ground. In the end, the two who used their talents were declared "faithful" and admitted to the joy of their Lord. The one who hid his talent was judged unfaithful and cast into the doom of outer darkness.

From that story, we learn several important truths. We see that Christians are not equally endowed. Some have more brains and abilities than others; some have greater opportunities than others. The person who says, "I can do anything anybody else can do," does not know what he is saying. He cannot. No person can do anything, and let's be thankful to God that He does not require this. But the point is that God gives certain abilities to every Christian. He expects every Christian to use them for Him. It is not my business nor your business to compare ourselves with others, but to use what we have in the best way we can.

Remember, to those who used their talents, the Master said, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant . . . Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Notice, he did not say "successful" servant. Faithfulness is ours to give. Success is God's to give. God does not condemn us if
